

A new web presence for Music 3149.

Written by David Keefe

Thursday, 03 February 2011 11:41 - Last Updated Monday, 22 August 2011 09:18

Music3149 is undergoing a revamp. Bold, I know, but I'm going to abandon the store.

Music will be available for download as PDFs: scores, parts, the lot. Paper versions will be available at cost, on personal application.

BUT it'll also be registered with APRA, and I'd like that if you haven't, get an APRA (or local rights organisation) licence. That way if you play it, I might get a few cents, and if you play someone else's music, they might get something.

This is really a change of philosophy: as a composer, I believe my music should be played, and obstacles to doing that should be removed. In writing a concerto or a march or a song, I've done the work already. I've prepared the best-looking scores I can for me to get the work played, so I really want to share that with you all, not make it awkward - I want you to share further with your friends and colleagues.

Of course, if a work gets picked up by a publisher, I'll point you to them, and withdraw any downloads.

So come on in, and browse the music.